Noun Case

The case of the noun tells us how the noun stands in relation with other words, especially the verb in the sentence. The three most common noun cases are :

- 1. Subjective (Nominative)
- 2. Objective
- Possessive

Subjective Case - In a sentence, when a noun or pronoun is used as a subject of the verb, it is said to be in the subjective case.

- e. g. (I) Smita met her aunt in the supermarket.
- (ii) We saw a magic show.

Objective Case - When a noun or pronoun acts as the object of the verb, it is said to be in the objective case. A noun or pronoun which comes after a preposition is also said to be in the objective case.

- e. g. (I) Smita met her aunt in the supermarket.
- (ii) We saw a magic show.
- (iii) The water tank is on the terrace.

Possessive Case - A noun is said to be in possessive case, if it denotes possession or ownership. A noun or pronoun in the possessive case governed by the noun that follows it. e. g. - (I) This is Srishti's book.
